

War Deaths Climb in Past Week

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer
SAIGON (AP) — The total of U.S. battlefield deaths in Vietnam climbed again last week to 96, the highest in six weeks, and the number of Vietnamese dead also went up, to 394 government troops and 2,552 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong.

The tolls in the weekly casualty report today brought the total killed in action in the 20 months since the Paris peace talks started to 17,191 Americans and 271,791 Vietnamese, including 27,013 government troops and 244,778 of the enemy.

The government's death toll last week was its highest in three weeks, while the enemy toll was the highest in more than a month.

Allied spokesmen attributed the rise in casualties—after a low period of fighting during the New Year's cease-fire—to a significant increase in enemy activity, particularly south of Da Nang.

The 98 battlefield deaths were 33 more than the 65 reported in the Dec. 28-Jan. 3 period.

The U.S. Command also reported 720 Americans wounded in action last week, the largest number since the week of Dec. 7-13. This raised to 263,723 the number of Americans reported wounded in the war.

South Vietnamese headquarters announced that 1,024 government troops were wounded in action last week, the highest number in three weeks.

The 17,191 U.S. troops killed since May 13, 1968, when the peace negotiations began in Paris, represent 42 per cent of the total 40,142 Americans reported killed in more than nine years of war.

The 27,013 South Vietnamese killed since the peace talks began represent 22 per cent of their reported total losses of 98,993 men. The enemy toll reported for the last 20 months is 42 per cent of the total reported killed since Jan. 1, 1961.

The U.S. Command also announced that three American helicopters were shot down Wednesday, with three U.S. soldiers killed and eight wounded. One went down in the A Shau Valley, the major enemy staging area on the Laotian border, and it was the second helicopter shot down there in three days.

In the biggest ground action announced today, about 100 North Vietnamese infantrymen and sappers moving behind a 100-round mortar barrage attacked a base 70 miles north-west of Saigon manned by South Vietnamese paratroopers and troops of the U.S. 11th Armored Cavalry Regiment.

The South Vietnamese said several of the sappers broke through the perimeter of the base but were killed or driven out. The defenders killed 29 North Vietnamese, headquarters said, while allied casualties were one American killed and seven Americans and eight South Vietnamese wounded.

new's 42-hour stay, until he flies to Honolulu Saturday.

Those arrested were charged with insulting the police, resisting arrest, using obscene language, and disorderly conduct.

The police said they turned out nearly a third of Auckland's 750-man police force to contain the demonstration.

Until today, the largest protests along Agnew's route were a turnout of about 200 in Canberra, Australia, Wednesday, and a slightly larger group last week in Kabul, Afghanistan.

Smaller protest demonstrations took place in the Philippines and Nepal.

Prime Minister Keith Holyoake greeted Agnew and his wife on their arrival from Australia and took them to the summer residence of Governor General Sir Arthur Porritt, situated high on a flower-decked hill, for a brief meeting and exchange of gifts.

The only other event on Agnew's schedule today was a reception at his hotel.

Agnew returns to Washington Monday.

uterus. But he said it would be a "rare circumstance indeed" that would cause him to prescribe most current pills.

Hertz said much early testing of the pill had been misinterpreted. He blamed fear of the population explosion and drug industry pressure for creating a worldwide enthusiasm that hampers "truly comprehensive and objective evaluation of its merits and demerits."

Although Hertz made only passing reference to the drug industry, another witness blamed the drug makers for dispensing "untruthful and dangerous advice."

Dr. Edmond Kassouf, identified by subcommittee spokesmen as one of the first American practitioners to suspect serious side effects from the pill, said pamphlets given consumers failed to take note of studies definitely linking oral contraceptives to fatal blood clotting and other disorders.

Kassouf also accused the American Medical Association of having a "puzzling" record on birth control pills, refusing to publish or take note of some critical reports.

In testifying on the risk of cancer, Hertz singled out the widely used synthetic female hormone estrogen and said the overwhelming mass of studies had showed it caused cancer in mice, rats, rabbits, hamsters and dogs.

"It is also to be noted that chemicals known to produce tumors in man such as aniline dyes, arsenic, coal tar and thorium also produce tumors in experimental animals and frequently in the same site," Hertz said.

Escapes From Camden Jail Are Captured

WICKENBURG, Ariz. (AP)—Three men who escaped from jail at Camden, Ark., were arrested without struggle here Wednesday.

Officers identified the trio as Larry Chambers, Bobby Sims and L. G. Davis. They broke from the jail Sunday.

JERRY T. BEGGS

MAGNOLIA—Jerry T. Beggs, son of Mr. and Mrs. V.B. Beggs of Hope, will be a candidate for the Bachelor of Science in Education degree at the end of the fall semester at Southern State College Jan. 23, according to James L. Smyth, registrar.

Beggs attended North Texas State University before enrolling at Southern State, where he is a senior majoring in secondary education and did his student teaching at Waldo High School.

Students completing work for their degrees at mid-year will receive their diplomas with the spring graduating class at commencement May 29, Smyth said.

Expansion of Air Travel to Continue

By VERN HAUGLAND

WASHINGTON (AP) — Expansion of U.S. air travel is expected to continue this year, but the rate of growth may drop off considerably as Americans become more concerned about their inflation-damaged dollars.

The Civil Aeronautics Board is forecasting a 6 per cent increase this year over 1969 in the passenger traffic on the major domestic airlines.

This compares with an estimated growth of 9 per cent in 1969.

"The comparatively low forecast for 1970 is affected by the pattern of development expected for the general economy: No real recession, but slow growth coupled with less rapid rise of prices," said a CAB staff study.

The study said if its forecast of a 6 per cent increase in travel is correct, it will make the lowest percentage increase since 1961 when traffic grew only 1 per cent over the preceding year.

In addition to general inflation, the CAB report said other factors influencing its low forecast include:

—The airline fare increases granted last Oct. 1.

—An expectation that the passenger tax on airline tickets will go up from its present 5 per cent to 8 per cent April 1.

The CAB estimated 1969 traf-

Declares WR to Use Session as Springboard

EL DORADO, Ark. (AP) — Bob Compton of El Dorado, mentioned as a possible Democratic gubernatorial candidate this year, said Wednesday that Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller will use a proposed special legislative session as a springboard for a third-term candidacy.

Compton, a lawyer, said Rockefeller should actually submit bills to the legislature to carry out his proposals, rather than simply asking legislators to create bills to do what they think the governor wants.

The lawmakers will not approve a tax program if it is "ill-defined and indefinite" and if Rockefeller does not specify how he plans to spend the money, Compton said.

He said that Rockefeller will be wasting state money by calling the legislature into special session unless he offers a detailed program and specific bills to put it into effect.

Thatcher Named to Water Commission

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — H.K. Thatcher of Camden was elected Wednesday as chairman of the Arkansas Waterways Commission, a state agency set up to regulate and promote traffic on the state's navigable rivers.

Thatcher, who has been vice chairman, succeeds Pratt Remmel of Little Rock, who had been chairman since the commission was established by the legislature two years ago.

The commission asked Army Engineers to study the possibility of placing mooring facilities along paved or revetted banks where there are navigation channels.

In another action, the commission asked the University of Arkansas Industrial Research and Extension Center at Little Rock to propose a plan for locating storage containers along navigable rivers so towboats could discharge waste oil and bilge.

TV Station Complies With Regulations

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Communications Commission said Wednesday that KTVE-TV, Channel 10 at El Dorado, Ark., is in compliance with main studio locations requirements.

The FCC ruled after complaints were filed by the El Dorado Chamber of Commerce and others complaining about the station's dual operations at El Dorado and Monroe, La.

The complaints generally said El Dorado was not given enough coverage in the station's reports.

The FCC said on Jan. 8 that the station originates 51.1 per cent of local live programs from the studio at El Dorado.

The commission cautioned KTVE to note that as the percentage of local live programming approaches the 50 per cent level other factors become more important.

Such factors include the number of employees and their functions at each studio and the facilities at the studios.

The FCC said further inquiry could result from additional movement of personnel or equipment from El Dorado to Monroe.

The station has 54 employees, with four who work at a transmitter site, 22 who work at El Dorado and 28 who work at Monroe.

On the 12 major airlines was 95.5 billion revenue passenger-miles and the forecast for 1970 is for 101.2 billion. A revenue passenger mile is one paying passenger flown one mile.

The increase for 1970 is 5.7 billion passenger miles, the smallest absolute increase since 1963," the CAB said.

Airlines had their biggest expansion in 1966 when there was a 23 per cent jump in the passenger travel.

The CAB forecast is in line with reports from other industries that American consumers are becoming much more reluctant to part with their money.

Figures released last week showed that Americans apparently bought fewer goods in 1969 than in the previous year, although they spent slightly more money because of the higher prices.

And in New York, where buyers are ordering merchandise for their stores this spring and summer, there was only cautious optimism about the business outlook.

not cold" to more talk about the allotments.

The meeting attracted farmers from Arkansas, Missouri and Mississippi.

The department announced Dec. 31 that the 1970 rice acreage allotment would be 1,836,461, down from the 1969 figure of 2,160,542.

Mills said he would ask the department to take $10 million of Title II funds under Public Law 480, the foreign aid bill, and allocate it for rice.

The second resolution charged that there is discrimination against rice farmers in a rice parity at 65 per cent while parity for farm commodities as a whole is quoted at 76 per cent.

L. C. Carter, executive vice president of the Arkansas Rice Growers Association, said Arkansas would lose $30 million if the allotment reduction is carried out.

He said $19 million of the loss would be in reduced production, with the rest lost through lower costs for processing, machinery and labor.

The allotment cut is based on the size of the rice surplus, which the USDA estimated would be 16.3 million bushels on July 1.

GREEN THUMB JR. GARDEN CLUB MEETS

Green Thumb Junior Garden Club, sponsored by the Daffodil Garden Club met at Paisley School Library on January 7 with the president, Clifford Elder, presiding. Wanda Bennett led the group in the pledges.

Mrs. Rufus Herndon III, club sponsor, introduced Mrs. Manuel Hainn, guest speaker. She read a most interesting book about an owl in Alaska, then she talked about different birds and their homes and identified the bird nests that the club members had brought.

HOPE DUPLICATE BRIDGE

There were three tables of players when the Hope Duplicate Bridge Club met on Monday, January 12 at the Diamond. Mrs. R.L. Branch and Mrs. E.J. Whitman took the first place scoring honors.

A tie for second place was between Mrs. Comer Boyett-Mrs. Harry Hawthorne and Mrs. George Robinson - Mrs. E.P. Young, Jr. In third position were Mrs. Marie Hendrix and Mrs. Syd McMath.

GARDEN CLUB MEETS

The Gardenia Garden Club met Thursday, January 8 in the home of Mrs. Jim James with Mrs. Bob Turner, co-hostess. The president, Mrs. Lonnie Crow, opened the meeting, and 14 members answered the roll call by telling about "a bird seen in the yard during the past month."

Mrs. Wallace Martin had the monthly feature, New News, and she told about planting bulbs in pots for early spring flowers. Then, the president had a most interesting program. She explained how to make a "candle" for birds, and she presented such a "candle" to each of the members.

"The Rooster Announces the Dawn" was the name of flower arrangements brought to the club meeting by Mrs. Frank Ward and Mrs. J.W. McRoy. A dessert plate was served with coffee or cold drinks.

Johnny Cashes in on Hard Times

By JOAN CROSBY
NEA Entertainment Editor

NEW YORK—(NEA)—The first thing is he is a no-doubt about-it man.

The second is his lived-in face, handsome, scarred, serious, older than the 37 years it has looked out on the world, strangely little-boyish when the mouth forms a smile.

The third thing is he's just about the hottest property in show business, a man whose records are presold hits, whose concerts are selling out, whose summering TV series was such a hit that he is returning as an ABC-TV regular in January, whose face is adorning the covers of national magazines, who is talked about, written about, wondered about and adored by fans from kids to golden-agers.

He's Johnny Cash, a private man who has gone through his own particular hell, straightened himself out, who is most often described by those who know him best as "kind and gentle," and who says of his new-found fame, "I'm thriving on it."

Cash's only real problem now is one of time. There just isn't enough of it. His pretty, pregnant wife, June (of the Carter Family) says, "The other day John said to me, 'If I could just get some sleep in'."

It's late at night right now, and John is in the cavernous NBC studio in Brooklyn taping The Kraft Music Hall set for Dec. 10. John is sitting in his dressing room, talking about her man. His voice, singing a melody with Peggy Lee, comes through the loudspeaker.

"At home," she says, "I generally get up at 6 a.m. so that I can have breakfast with the kids. They have six girls, by their first marriages, and John asks me to wake him up so he can be with us too. But some mornings now I let him sleep."

She was worried because the preceding day she had been forced to cancel a photography session that would have meant his face on the cover of another magazine.

When we made the date, we didn't realize it was taping day. See, John has this seat on his chin where a doctor cut out a cyst and cut into a muscle. When he gets tired that side of his face just quats. He also has a weak left eye and that gets sleepy-looking. I just figured a his face was going to get through the taping. We had to cancel the pictures. I try to help John when I can like that.

John and June were married in March, 1967. She is credited with helping him personally and professionally.

"I don't know about that," she says. "I do know he has been a great help to me. We're very compatible. We like the same things and we do a lot for each other."

To me, John is one of the kindest human beings I have ever known. He is a kind

HELEN HELP US!

by Helen Bottel

PARANOID OR SMART?

Dear Helen: We are two 18-year-old girls who work in a small shop that isn't in the best area, though not the worst either. That is, we USED to work there. We got fired for being "scaredycats."

It happened like this. Last Sunday, ours was the only place open on the block. A strange looking man walked in while we were all alone there. He had to be up on dope, because he said wild things, then started talking to himself in the mirror. He locked the door and lay down in front of it and kept us prisoners for half an hour, laughing and swearing and saying crazy things. We didn't dare try to telephone or call for help.

and good and I try to be the same way with him. I know married people have arguments, but we haven't had one bit of trouble.

"This baby, which I expect in March, is real special to us. I've hoped since we were married that I'd be pregnant. We'd like a boy, and he'll be called John Carter Cash. But if it's another girl, she'll be named Rachel."

As a member of the Carter Family, June has known and worked with John for years.

"Even before he meant anything to me, I felt he had a lot of talent and a lot more potential than he gave. But it has just developed in the last few years. I feel he appeals to the working man, one who gets his hands dirty, because he can relate to John and the times he has had hard times and he has overcome them, and that makes men like him."

Kraft coproducer Gary Smith agrees. "He is such a man's man. He has all that strength in him, yet there's nothing to be afraid of. He's gentle, kind, unassuming and doesn't have one bit of phoniness in him."

The taping completed, Johnny relaxes with a cigarette and says, "I've worked hard for 14 years and now it is paying off. I was ambitious for this to happen, but it was a lot to hope for."

His image is of a man who has been the route of drugs and flophouses and jails. But that's in the past. What he is today is what counts.

"I'm a lot of different things to different people. I'm different to my wife than I am to my manager and I'm different to fans than I am with my family. I love children. I have to have my minutes alone to get food for thought, to regroup my forces, whatever they are. Music is all-important to me. It's a part of me. I use it to express myself and shake off hidden inhibitions. Many of my prison songs maybe are an extension of my bad side that I get shed of through the music. Poetry, the soft side, is also important to me."

And that brings us back to the first thing. He's a man and because he is, he doesn't have to waste a lot of time proving it to himself or anybody else.

HOPE (ARK) STAR, Printed by Offset

Television and Radio

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

AP Television-Radio Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — It was one of those NBC "Multi-Special Nights" Thursday—three programs in rapid succession, each designed to create fun, laughter and a sense of well-being.

The 2½ hours had marked ups and downs, but there was considerable diversity, some pleasant singing and dancing, lots of stars and, once in a while, a chuckle.

The evening started with a pilot show for a series, "The Shameful Secrets of Hastings Corners," a half-hour comedy that was a parody of "Peyton Place," every soap opera on the air and—in the courtroom sequence—"Perry Mason."

"Hastings Corners" had its moments, but it has arrived a couple of seasons too late: "Peyton Place" and "Perry Mason" have departed into reruns and the daytime soap operas are rarely seen by the male half of the nighttime audience, so the satire was lost.

Next was a pleasant hour of song, dance and wry sketches built around the unpredictability of womankind.

Gene Kelly starred in "The Wonderful World of Girls," strolling easily through his musical numbers and handling the sketches nimbly. He had some very expert help from Barbara Feldon and Ruth Buzzi but the show drooped occasionally because there was little or no unpredictability about the sketch material.

Rowan and Martin followed with a special dedicated to one of television's favorite games, making fun of television. The show kidded, in sketches and blackouts, everything from TV news departments to the commercials.

They, too, had some expert help—Carol Burnett, the Smithers Brothers, Sammy Davis Jr. and cameo appearances by other stars.

One series of blackouts was pegged on the premise that television had changed the course of history: Washington crossed the Delaware in search of a TV repairman, the Titanic changed course in mid-Atlantic to pick up a better TV signal.

The stars, while involved in a lot of costume changing and parts in the sketches, stuck pretty close to their functions in "Laugh-In" and were rarely the cause for much hilarity.

Tuesday night's "Movie of the Week" on ABC ran about 12 minutes short because somebody started the projector for part two of "Foreign Exchange" while several minutes of film were left on the projector unreeling part one.

This resulted in the omission of a big chunk of action in mid-program and panic at the studio when the program unexpectedly ended early. They grabbed a handy reel of film and slammed it on the air.

This viewer thought the sudden movement of plot, while confusing, was just sloppy filmmaking and bad editing.

HEARING TESTS Set For Hempstead County

Free Electronic hearing tests will be given in HOPE on FRIDAY, JANUARY 16. Anyone that has trouble hearing or understanding is welcome to come for a free test using the latest electronic equipment to determine his or her particular degree of hearing loss.

Diagrams showing how the ear works and some of the causes of hearing loss will be available. Visitors can also see how a simple operation on the ear has helped thousands of people to hear again and how the latest electronic developments are helping thousands more.

Everyone should have a hearing check at least once a year if they have any trouble hearing clearly. Even people now wearing a hearing aid or those that have been told that nothing could be done for them should have a hearing test and should find out about the latest methods of hearing correction.

The free hearing tests in HOPE will be held at the BILL ELLIS INSURANCE 217 S. MAIN ST. on JANUARY 16 from 1:00 to 3:00 P.M.

MR. TOM PURVIS will conduct the tests through the courtesy of the Beltone Hearing Service, 516 Wood Street, across from the post office, Texarkana, Arkansas.

If you can not get to HOPE for your free test, you may come to the Texarkana office Monday through Friday, from 9 A.M. to 5 P.M., and Saturdays from 9 A.M. to 1 P.M.

Kentucky Loses Small College Top Rating

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Stephen F. Austin College switched places with Kentucky Wesleyan and took over the No. 1 spot in The Associated Press small college basketball poll today.

The Lumberjacks, now 12-0 after a narrow 117-112 victory over No. 3 Howard Payne last week, drew three first-place ballots and 196 points from sports-leaders and sports writers around the country.

The Panthers, 10-2, after losing to Arkansas State 88-84 last week, slipped to second, also polling three first place votes and a total of 186 points.

Howard Payne, 15-1, saw its 15-game winning streak stopped by the Lumberjacks, but retained the third spot with 125 points.

Youngstown, drawing a No. 1 ballot, slipped into fourth place, moving up a notch from last week and traded places with Ashland, 11-1. The Eagles also drew a first-place vote.

Trinity, Tex., 9-2, remained sixth while Puget Sound, 8-2, moved up two spots to seventh. Cannon, 10-2, fell one place to eighth, as did North Carolina A&T, 8-0, slipping to a ninth-place tie.

Southwest Missouri, drawing a first-place ballot, made the biggest move, edging into the Top Ten, also in ninth place. The Bears, 9-4, were 15th last week.

Oglethorpe, 8-1, 10th last week, fell all the way to 20th after losing for the first time this year. Oral Roberts, 15-1, also made a big move, grabbing 11th after being 16th last week.

The rest of the Top Twenty in order: Louisiana Tech, Cheney State, Kentucky State, Maryland State, Jackson State, Wartburg, Fairmont State, Evansville and Oglethorpe.

Bitter Fruit for Texas Grid Fans

By DENNE H. FREEMAN

Associated Press Sports Writer
DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — It's a bitter fruit the professional football fan in Dallas has to bite into this winter of discontent. The old Dallas Texans—a team they sent packing to Kansas City for lack of support—are the World Champions not the perennial No. 2 Cowboys, who have been the heir apparent to the throne since 1966.

A cartoon by Bob Taylor of the Dallas Times Herald puts the reaction of this football crazy city this way: "Welcome to Dallas—Home of the Owner of Pro Football's World Champions!"

Lamar Hunt, the founder of the American Football League, is from Dallas, of course. He was a runty substitute on the Southern Methodist football team.

Hunt brought pro football to Dallas. It was his decision to bring the Texans here that got the National Football League cracking. Both fielded teams beginning in the 1960 season.

It was millionaire Hunt vs. Millionaire Clint Murchison. Although Hunt was fabulously wealthy he didn't want to go on forever dropping money down a hole.

A conservative estimate had Hunt losing $1.2 million in three years. The Texans lost $200,000 even when it won the AFL championship in 1961.

Hunt surrendered the flag May 22, 1963 at exactly 11 a.m. In an emotional press conference, Hunt said "Many people have expressed to me their sorrow that the Texans would possibly leave Dallas. I have tried to explain that the football club must be run as a business, and although I personally regret leaving Dallas, I feel the conditions under which this move is being made are ideal."

Hunt then said something that really rings home now to the Dallas fan: "As a sports town there is nothing wrong with Dallas except the situation which was created here."

"The American Football League has taken time and energy to build and has, to all intents and purposes, arrived. Kansas City has, in my opinion, earned the right to be represented in pro football and I am flattered that Kansas City has chosen the Dallas Texans organization as the professional football team that they want."

And for the fans that did stick by the Texans Hunt had this word: "No fans could have been more loyal than those who backed the Texans. It is for these loyal supporters that I have my greatest regrets."

Hunt hired Chief coach Hank Stram, who was an offensive coach on the University of Miami Team and stuck with him through some rough times.

Stram had the same critics that now loudly call for Cowboy coach Tom Landry's scalp—that he had the material but couldn't win the big ones.

Offensive tackle Jim Tyrer, who was with the Texans as a rookie, said "We're 40 guys who've been through the peaks and the valleys. We didn't float into this thing. We had to keep scrapping and coming back and Hank gave us great guidance."

Hunt said he stuck by Stram because "He has warmth. It has worked out far more successfully than I ever dared hope."

Defensive tackle Jerry Mays of SMU felt he was run out of his hometown. He also was a rookie with the Texans.

Mays was particularly pleased by a sign unfolded at the Super Bowl after the Chiefs' 23-7 trouncing of the NFL's Minnesota.

It said: "Come home, Dallas Texans, all is forgiven."

Mays said "If I do any crowing, I'll crow inside."

Tex Schramm, general manager of the Cowboys, said "It's all history now. We didn't run 'em out of town. Lamar wanted to make the move. He just looked at it from a business man's standpoint."

Now, guess who will meet in the Cotton Bowl in an exhibition game this summer—Yep, the Cowboys and the Chiefs.

Mays said "We thought a game with the Cowboys would come about someday, but it was so far in the future it seemed unbelievable. I've wondered how I would react emotionally playing the Cowboys."

So, the Texan will finally come back home—this time as world champions to meet the team that used to be the town bully.

Penn State, Texas Talk About Meet

WASHINGTON (AP) — Texas and Penn State, which failed to settle their differences this past season over which was the nation's best college football team, have been discussing the possibility of meeting next fall. The Associated Press learned Wednesday night.

Coaches Darrell Royal of Texas and Joe Paterno of Penn State met for preliminary talks Wednesday shortly after the National Collegiate Athletic Association convention passed a rule permitting teams to schedule 11 regular season football games rather than 10.

The AP also learned that a meeting was set for Thursday between Royal, director of athletics at Texas, and Edward M. Czekaj, Penn State's athletic director.

Willie Mays Plans to Keep Playing

NEW YORK (AP) — Willie Mays, 38 years young and no less exuberant than when he broke into baseball 19 years ago with the New York Giants, intends to play the game "as long as the Commissioner can keep me around."

But the grown-up Say Hey Kid, given a red-carpet welcome by New York Wednesday in commemoration of his slugging feats, doesn't expect to rewrite Babe Ruth's home run record in the twilight years of his illustrious career.

"I can't cut that one," Mays said of Ruth's record of 714 home runs, which to date has withstood assaults from all the modern day long-ball hitters, including Willie, whose 600 homers rank No. 2 on the all-time list. "I don't have a chance. Maybe Hank Aaron has a chance. He's 35—three years younger than me—and he should play until he's as old as I am, and maybe longer."

Aaron has smacked 554 homers in 16 seasons with the Braves in Milwaukee and Atlanta.

Mays, who poled his first homer in 1951—off Warren Spahn in the old Polo Grounds—and still calls New York "my home" despite 13 seasons in San Francisco, was feted throughout the day in a visit to the Big Town.

He appeared on two national television interview shows, received 600 shares of stock—at $6 per share—in Adirondack Indus-

Basketball Weekend Starts Early

By RALPH ROUNTON
Star Sports Writer

Basketball's weekend starts early tonight, as the Senior and Junior girls travel to Willisville while the Yerger Bobkittens and 8th graders host Arkadelphia here, all beginning at 6:30 p.m.

Tomorrow (Friday) night the Bobcats open up in 4-AA West against powerful Camden Lincoln here at Jones Field House, preceded by the junior boys pre-lim at 6:30.

Saturday night brings Arkadelphia here for senior boys and "B" games making four straight home games for the Bobcats.

This week Hope Coach John Ross has worked the Cats hard for once-beaten Lincoln, who last year won here 104-46, and is the defending state AA champion.

Junior 6-2 forward Charles Rateliff is out for a week with a sprained ankle, and starting guard Parker Powell has missed practice because of death in his family. Parker will play tomorrow and Saturday nights, though.

So the starting lineup will likely be Powell, Ronnie Massanelli, David Briggs, Larry Muldrew, and John Dudley, the same quintet that went most of the way in the 77-62 win over Smackover last Saturday night.

However, sophs, Steve Harris, Lynn Norton, and Tim White are looking better each week, as are guards Ronny Brown, Thomas Norvell, and Roger Newton.

Defense will be a big factor in chances for Hope against Camden Lincoln tomorrow evening (Friday). With that, a minimum of errors and some good offense, the Cats can pull off an upset.

Alcindor's effort against the Lakers certainly was superior. He tied the game at 109-109 and 111-111 and then broke a 113-113 with a stuff shot with 12 seconds left.

Jones Boys Dominate ABA Stars

NEW YORK (AP) — Three Jones boys, all unrelated, have been named to the Western Division squad for the American Basketball Association's All-Star Game at Indianapolis Jan. 24.

Larry Jones of Denver and James and Steve Jones of New Orleans were among the 10 Western Division standouts selected Wednesday by 50 sports writers and sportscasters in the ABA cities.

Larry Jones and Washington's Warren Armstrong were the only unanimous choices on the squad, announced Wednesday by ABA Commissioner Jack Dolph. James Jones and rookie Spencer Haywood of Denver missed unanimous selection by one vote each.

Also selected were Cincy Powell and John Beasley of Dallas, Warren Davis of Los Angeles, Red Robbins of New Orleans and Glen Combs of Dallas.

S. Carolina Posts Another Cage Victory

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer
South Carolina's towering Gamecocks overcame the Selvy mystique at Furman, but Philadelphia's imposing Palestra cast its spell on Calvin Murphy and Niagara.

South Carolina, the nation's third-ranked college basketball power, came from behind Wednesday night for a 59-56 victory over scrappy Furman, coached by former scoring wizard Frank Selvy and triggered by his youngest brother, Charles, who poured in 22 points.

At Philadelphia, Fran O'Hanlon provided the spark in the closing minutes as Villanova knocked off previously unbeaten Niagara 108-92 in the nightcap of a Palestra doubleheader. Georgetown beat St. Joseph's 89-80 in the opener.

Murphy, the 12th-ranked Purple Eagles' All-American marksman, scored 28 points against Villanova—two under his season average and four less than the winners' Howard Porter.

Ohio University, No. 14 in the country, trimmed Miami, Ohio, 71-61 and 18th ranked Louisville got by Dayton 77-69 in the only other games involving The Associated Press' Top Twenty.

At Greenville, S.C., the Gamecocks trailed Furman by as many as five points midway in the second half before rallying for their 12th victory in 13 games. John Roche, who hit for 23 points in all, paced the comeback along with 6-foot-10 strong-boys Tom Owens and Tom Riker.

O'Hanlon drove for a twisting layup and followed up with two free throws, touching off a Villanova spurt in the last three minutes that handed Niagara its first setback in 12 starts. The Wildcats' gifted guard wound up with 22 points, two more than teammate Chris Ford.

Ohio University, leading 27-26 at halftime, broke away to a 23-point bulge in the second half and breezed past Miami for a 10-2 season mark. Greg McDivitt's 23 points led the Bobcats to their second Mid-American can Conference victory against one loss. Bowling Green downed Kent State 73-67 to tie the Toledo for the MAC lead at 2-0.

Al Villcheck's three-point play with two minutes remaining broke a 70-70 deadlock, helping Louisville, 8-2, subdue Dayton for Coach John Dromo's 50th career victory. Villcheck topped the Cardinals with 20 points while Dayton's Ken May was high in the game with 30.

Seton Hall nipped American University 64-63 at South Orange, N.J., in a wild game capped by a sit-in at center court by black students protesting Seton Hall's cheerleading policies. The students held up the game for 20 minutes after a goal-tending call on Ken House's driving layup with 11 seconds remaining gave the Pirates their winning points.

The Rev. John J. Horgan, the university's athletic director, finally persuaded the demonstrators to leave the court after promising there would be no organized cheer-leading for the remainder of the season. Two black girls had been suspended from the cheerleading squad for missing practice and a white girl had been dismissed for academic reasons.

Giacomini Is One of Best in Hockey

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Ed Giacomini has proven he is one of the best men in hockey when it comes to defending the net—and he also makes his point on offense once in awhile.

The New York Rangers' goal-tender picked up his second assist of the National Hockey League season Wednesday night in a 7-1 rout of the Toronto Maple Leafs.

The victory kept the East Division-leading Rangers three points ahead of the Montreal Canadiens, who demonstrated how to use the power play in beating Los Angeles 4-2.

In other NHL action, Minnesota snapped a 13-game winless streak by topping West Division-leading St. Louis 5-2 and Chicago blanked Pittsburgh 5-0.

Giacomini helped on Rod Gilbert's goal early in the third period, but rookie Bill Fairbairn didn't need any aid, scoring unassisted goals in the first and second periods. Arnie Brown also scored twice for the Rangers and Bob Nevin and Dave Balon once each. Dave Keon ruined Giacomini's shutout in the first period.

Lemaire's two goals in 61 seconds in the second period, his ninth and 10th power play goals and his 24 and 25th goals of the season, gained the Canadiens a 2-2 tie and they went on to the victory that put them in second place, one point ahead of the Boston.

Montreal's winning goal also came on a power play, being scored by Bobby Rousseau in the third period. John Ferguson added the clincher for the Canadiens. Jimmy Peters and Bill Flett scored for Los Angeles.

A pair of goals by Bill Golds-worthy sparked Minnesota to its first victory since last Dec. 10. Jean Paul Parise, Ray Cullen and Claude Larose also scored for Minnesota. Barclay Plager and Ron Anderson connected for St. Louis.

Pat Stapleton scored for Chicago early in the first period and it was all the help rookie goalie Tony Esposito needed as he recorded his ninth shutout. Gerry Pinder, Stan Mikita, Gilles Marotte and Bobby Hull also scored for the Black Hawks.

Baseball Hero Succumbs at Age of 61

By DICK JOYCE
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Johnny Murphy, whose long baseball career was climaxed by the New York Mets' stunning 1969 World Series victory, died Wednesday night in Roosevelt Hospital of a massive heart attack.

A native New Yorker and former star of the Pittsburgh Pirates, Murphy had held the position of Mets' general manager since Dec. 21, 1967, following Bing Devane's unexpected resignation and return to the St. Louis Cardinals.

Murphy had served as the Mets' supervisor of scouting since their inception in 1961. Commenting on Murphy's death from "Gleaner," Calif., dairy stevedore, former Mets manager Casey Stengel said: "I was shocked."

He said the club progressed all year because of the way he made the deals and signed the players that brought the players to the club.

Murphy had been hospitalized since last Dec. 30 after suffering a heart attack at the club's

NFL Trying Again for Realignment

By SHEILA MORAN
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The 13 clubowners of the new National Conference of the National Football League huddled again today to try to realign themselves into three divisions that please everybody.

After five more fruitless hours of meetings Wednesday, Commissioner Pete Rozelle said, "I can't report any progress except I found out some of the owners are dissatisfied with their hotel accommodations."

"I'd say that might be a plus because maybe they'll want to go home."

Rozelle promised that the owners won't leave New York "until we have a resolution on this, one way or another."

He said if the owners don't unanimously agree to a 5-4-4 divisional setup among themselves this week, he will call the signals for them.

"Someone will have to change his view or I will have to become involved in this," Rozelle said. "I do not have the authority to move in, but I have the responsibility to see that it's done."

Rozelle's methods could involve unilateral action on his part or settlement by lottery, through a series of blind draws.

The commissioner has a few other methods at his disposal, which include "locking them up" as he did during the eight-month hassle over the grouping of the new American Conference.

One of those meetings lasted 36 hours. However, those meetings were more complicated than the current ones because home.

Murphy pitched for the Yankees from 1934 to 1947, helping them win seven American League pennants and six world championships. He was one of the game's first standout relief specialists and compiled a career win-loss record of 93-53.

The Yankees gave him his unconditional release in 1947. He joined the Boston Red Sox for one season, then was appointed supervisor of Boston's New England scouting operation by Joe Cronin, now American League president.

In 1948 he became the Red Sox director of player personnel, and held that post until 1961, when George Weiss, his former boss in New York, bought him along to the Mets as club scout. Murphy was named a vice president of the club in 1964.

NFL Trying Again for Realignment

they involved the transfer of three old NFL clubs to give the conference 13 teams. After it was decided which teams would switch, the realignment was set in a matter of hours.

Rozelle is anxious to settle the National Conference and get on to other things, like the 1970 schedule and a new television contract for all 26 teams.

Today's meeting was the fifth the NFL owners have had on realignment since last May when Cleveland, Baltimore and Pittsburgh of the old NFL agreed to switch to the new American Conference.

Cleveland will compete with Pittsburgh, Houston and Cincinnati in one division. Kansas City, Oakland, San Diego and Denver will comprise another. Baltimore joins Buffalo, Boston, Miami and the New York Jets in a five-team division.

Attempts to shift the 13 NFL holdovers have run into all sorts of problems, including geography, weather, stadium size, gate potential, and competitive ability. Owners are reluctant to be put into a division which figures to be dominated by a powerful club for any length of time.

Asked if the Super Bowl had changed this sentiment about Minnesota, Rozelle quipped, "The clubs which feel Minnesota should not be in their division still feel that way."

New Orleans wants to be with Atlanta and Dallas, and Philadelphia, New York and Washington want to be together. Los Angeles and San Francisco must be in the same division.

Nevada Again Trying for Horse Racing

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — They're trying again to revive horse racing, already a three-time loser in this gambling state.

In the community of Henderson, 17 miles south of this, the gaming capital of the nation, some venturesome souls are building an oval. Some of the local gentry wish them luck, some don't. To the proprietors of the gaming parlors, the prospect of large sums of money being wagered on things other than cards, dice and wheels is less than thrilling.

The backers of Las Vegas Downs believe they can make a go of it even if tourists don't show up in droves. They point to the 300,000 persons now inhabiting the Las Vegas metropolitan area.

The track is scheduled to open in September—but even that has spurred some mild waging. Observers say the pace of construction is so slow that it is

Best Male Athlete Is Enjoying Life

NEW YORK (AP) — Tom Seaver, selected The Associated Press' Male Athlete of the Year Wednesday, is worrying less and enjoying life more now that he is the toast of the sports world.

"I've been turning down many more invitations than I've accepted," Seaver said of the banquet circuit that awaits baseball's brightest star every year. "I've just been enjoying myself, spending time with my family. I won't let all this interrupt my private life."

"But the time to start worrying is when they stop recognizing you."

Seaver, the New York Mets' All-American boy who led them to their believe-it-or-not National League pennant and World Series victory last year, is enjoying his latest accolade now.

"It's quite an honor," he said of the Associated Press award. "I'm very flattered."

At 25 years of age, Seaver, who won 25 regular season games, one playoff game and one World Series game last season, appears to have a number of worryless years ahead of him. In fact, with his drive to accomplish the impossible as the leader of the Mets, it isn't unbelievable that he might match Sandy Koufax's feat of winning the AP award twice.

The only other double winners are tennis player Don Budge and golfer Byron Nelson.

By winning the honor, Seaver continued baseball's domination of the award. He is the fifth straight baseball player to win the honor, following on the heels of Detroit's Denny McLain, and he is the eighth in the last nine years.

To win it, Seaver had to beat unlikely racing will start before next year.

A mile-long track near the strip went bankrupt in the mid-1950s shortly after its opening. In 1962 Joe W. Wells, then owner of the Thunderbird Hotel, opened a three-eighths mile track called Thunderbird Downs. But it was closed when he sold the hotel to Del Webb.

Wells moved racing to the site of the earliest track but it failed after three months. When he died several years ago he was trying to start a race track southwest of the city.

Las Vegas Downs plans two meets a year on the three-quarter mile oval with accommodations for 7,500 spectators.

The firm has sold 25 to 30 per cent of the $3 million in stock offered Nevada residents last Feb. 12. The president, Hershel Trumbo, says promoters might look elsewhere for money if sales don't pick up.

Trumbo says the track "can break even on a $100,000 handle a day. Some of the old tracks in Vegas topped that."

out Joe Namath, his football rival in Shea Stadium. Namath, of course, led the New York Jets to another impossible goal, the American Football League's first Super Bowl triumph.

Seaver received 96 votes in the balloting of sports writers and sportscasters throughout the country. Namath got 51. Steve Owens, the Heisman Trophy winner from Oklahoma, was third with 41 and Australian tennis pro Rod Laver fourth with 40. Then came Joe Kapp, Minnesota quarterback, with 35.

Dave Stockman Is Man With a Mission

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Golf Writer
PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Dave Stockton, admittedly disgusted with his performance last season, was a man with a mission today as he set out in the first round of the $100,000 Phoenix Open Golf Tournament.

"I want to win," said the six-year tour veteran from the University of Southern California. "Winning. That's what's important."

"That's what this game is all about."

Stockton, not noted as a long hitter but a first-rate scrambler, gathered $70,707 in purses last season, but failed to win a tournament.

"I'd rather have won $25,000 and have a title," the 28-year-old said.

"I won two tournaments the year before, in consecutive appearances — not consecutive tournaments, but in consecutive starts—and won over $100,000."

"Maybe I got a fat head. I don't know. Something happened. I didn't play that well last year, didn't concentrate that well."

"Maybe I thought they just ought to hand me a championship."

"Well, it's different this year. 'I'm out here to win.'"

If his first tournament is any indication, he's on the right track. He was among the leaders for three rounds in last week's Los Angeles Open before struggling in with a final round 74, three over par but still good enough to give him a tie for seventh.

Stockton, the son of a golf pro, scored his first tour victory in the prestigious Colonial Invitational at Fort Worth in 1967, then won the Cleveland and Milwaukee Opens in 1968 before going into a decline last year.

His performance in Los Angeles stamped him one of the favorites for the title in the Phoenix Open, one of the oldest events on the pro tour.

Other chief contenders in the 72 hole test running through Sunday are Billy Casper, winner of last week's Los Angeles Open, defending champion Gene Littler, 1969 leading money winner Frank Beard, Vardon Trophy winner Dave Hill and the

Ineligible at Yale Next on NCAA Agenda

By HERSCHEL NESESON
Associated Press Sports Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Collegiate Athletic Association, having sent the nation's college football coaches into a whirlwind of activity by permitting them to schedule an additional game next fall, today faced the controversial case of Yale's ineligible basketball player.

A session between coaches Darrel Royal of top-ranked Texas and Joe Paterno of runner-up Penn State was just one of many hurriedly arranged meetings Wednesday as schools hurried to line up opponents for the newly approved game.

Meanwhile, although the NCAA's 64th annual convention officially ended Wednesday, the NCAA Council, policy making body of the national organization, was expected to punish Yale for knowingly using a basketball player declared ineligible by both the NCAA and its affiliate, the Eastern College Athletic Conference.

The likelihood was that Yale would be slapped with some form of probation, possibly contingent on whether it ceases to use the player. However, the school has said it will continue defying the NCAA and ECAC.

The issue is another power struggle between the NCAA and the Amateur Athletic Union over control of amateur basketball in this country.

In an attempt to bring the AAU to its knees, the NCAA refused to sanction the basketball competition in the Maccabiah Games in Tel Aviv last August, although it had done so in the past and approved all other sports in last year's games.

Yale, however, told its invited player, Jack Langer, that he could participate in the games and he was the only collegian on the U.S. basketball team, which lost to Israel in the finals.

Yale received a minor setback Wednesday when the NCAA delegates tabled a proposal that would have specifically identified the Maccabiah Games as one of the International competitions to be considered for approval.

A Texas-Penn State football game would be one of the highlights of the 1970 season after the storm that arose this past season when both teams posted 11-0 records. However, both sides insisted early today that such a meeting was not settled.

The Texas administration, in fact, voted against the proposal to allow an increase in the regular season from 10 games to 11.

Elsewhere, Paul Dietzel, head coach and director of athletics holders of the four major titles — Orville Moody, Tony Jacklin, Ray Floyd and George Archer.

The delegates also voted to prohibit a coach or his representative from contacting a high school athlete at an event in which he participates and killed a measure that would have given the NCAA's executive committee review powers over decisions made by the 14 rules committees, which operate autonomously.

Broyles Named Head of Conference

WASHINGTON (AP) — Frank Broyles of Arkansas was elected Wednesday to succeed Paul Dietzel of South Carolina as president of the American College Association.

Teams Can Now Play 11 Games

WASHINGTON (AP) — When the NCAA voted Wednesday to let college football teams play 11 games per season, Coach Frank Broyles of Arkansas got his wish.

"That's great," said Broyles. He said that if schedules could be worked out, he would like to add the 11th game to the 1970 season, possibly with a team on the West Coast.

"I'll go to work on that right away," Broyles said. "We will certainly want to start a home-and-home for an interseasonal game."

He did not mention what specific teams he might have in mind, but said it would be nice to take the team to the coast every other year before school starts.

Broyles said he would like to add the 11th game to the front end of the existing schedule—which would make it prior to the start of school.

Col. A. J. Dielens, athletic director at the U.S. Military Academy, said Army would add the extra contest. Coach Art Parseghian of Notre Dame said he was for an 11th game but didn't know whether his administration would approve it.

In other action Wednesday, the NCAA delegates approved limiting to two the number of visits a prospective athlete can make to a college. Then they ordered further study of a proposal to limit a coach or his representative to the same number of visits to the youngster's home town.

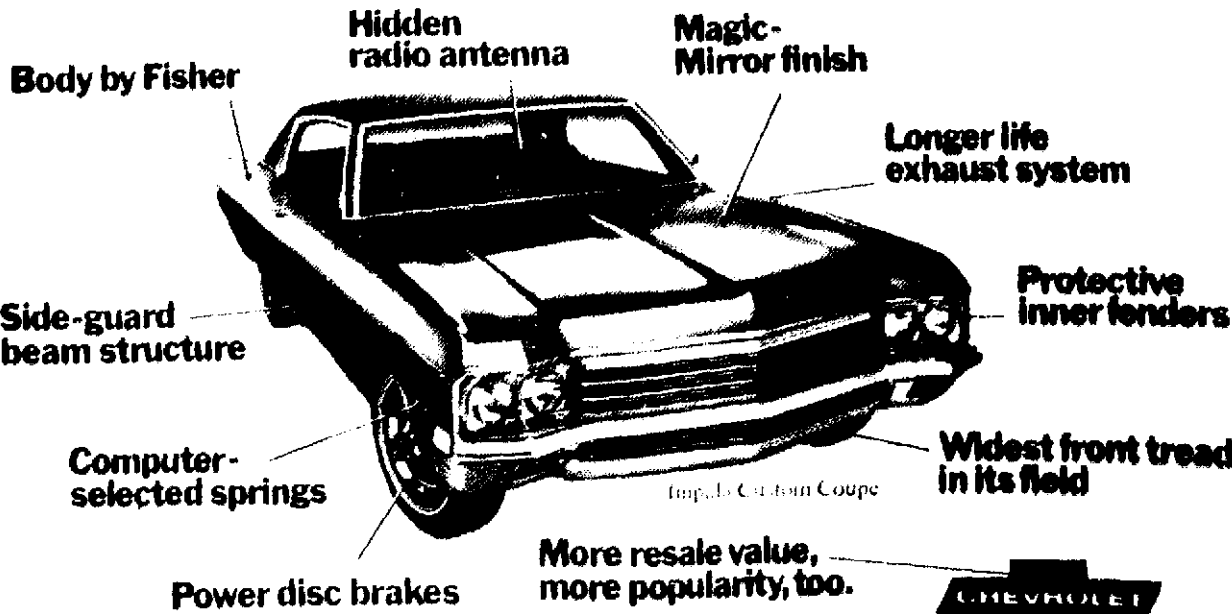

The delegates also voted to prohibit a coach or his representative from contacting a high school athlete at an event in which he participates and killed a measure that would have given the NCAA's executive committee review powers over decisions made by the 14 rules committees, which operate autonomously.

Impala.

It's got more re-sale value because it's got more to re-sell.

One of the nicest things about buying an Impala is selling it. That's because selling it traditionally brings back more of what people put into it in the first place. Money. Where does Impala keep getting its higher resale value? From features like those you see below. Features which explain why America's most popular car for the last nine years will undoubtedly make it ten in a row.

Impala. More to drive. More to re-sell.

More resale value, more popularity, too.

Putting you first, keeps us first.

Kent and Lois Wiley of Oak Park, Ill., are one of the really nice couples that play top flight bridge. In 1966 when we won the Mixed Team Championship with Minda Brachman of Dallas and the late Helen Sobel Smith of Detroit, the Wileys were on the team that finished fifth. This year they won the Flight B Mixed Pair Championship.

The remarkable feature of this is that Lois has to use Braille cards, memorize the dummy when it is laid down and carry all this extra material in her head. Here is a gem of defensive play with which the Wileys managed to defeat one of our most famous players at a six no-trump contract.

Six hearts would have been a superior contract but the game was match points and no-trump counts a trifle more. As for the bidding, North's four-club call was Gerber ace request, and South's four no-trump showed three.

Kent opened the king of spades. Lois played the deuce and South won with the ace. Then he rattled off four diamonds to chuck a club from dummy and five hearts to come down to the jack of spades and ace-queen of clubs in his own hand.

Kent could see what declarer was doing and proceeded to discard down to the queen-eight of spades and king of clubs, while Lois whose perception makes up for lack of sight, hung on to all three of her clubs.

At this point declarer could make his slam by simply playing a club to his ace but he tried the other play and led dummy's six of spades, and Kent's two spade tricks defeated the contract.

MONEY CLIPS

by Mort Reed

Eisenhower Dollar
No final decision has been made on the design or composition of the proposed dollar. Since the federal stockpile of silver is less than 85 million ounces, don't look for an immediate approval of the coin by the Nixon administration.

1970 U.S. Proof Sets

The Treasury Department is still accepting orders for 1970 proof sets but a closing date may be expected before the end of January. If Mary Brooks, director of the Bureau of the Mint, abides by the original ceiling of 3 million sets, the ordering deadline may come earlier.

Each buyer is limited to five sets at $5 each. Send check or money order to Officer in Charge, United States Assay Office, 350 DuBois Ave., San Francisco, Calif. 94102.

New One-Dollar Design

Sen. Karl Mundt's idea for an impression of the Mt. Rushmore Memorial on the reverse of our $1 bill is not quite dead. Look for this proposal to pop up again and, if there is enough pressure from the Dakotas and collectors, the director of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing may just go along.

The director informed this writer that the conversion to a new design would not be prohibitive in cost.

Apollo 12 Commemorative, Canadian

The Lombardo Mint in Sherbrooke, Quebec, has submitted the design above for a 1 1/2-inch commemorative medallion in bronze and pure silver to sell for $2 in bronze and $10 in silver. The obverse shows the three astronauts superimposed by their names—Conrad, Gordon, Bean—with a portion of the "Intrepid" landing module in the background.

An unusual treatment for the reverse device depicts the command craft, "Yankee Clipper," in the likeness of its namesake, a 19th-century sailing vessel under full canvas riding ahead of her wake from the earth to the moon's outer orbit. The design is completely encircled in a border of unbroken chain surrounded by the inscription APOLLO XII Return to the Moon.

Interested readers in the United States may address inquiries to the American division of the Lombardo Mint, P.O. Box 525-A, Derbyline, Vt. 05830.

American Motors

None of the auto manufacturers has embarked on full-scale antipollution programs and no amount of rhetoric can cover it up.

The federal government's antipollution programs are as broad in scope as the manufacturers' programs. Which means miniscule.

We are all in danger of choking to death.

So what happens now? Still more pledges, promises and public commitments? Congressional bluster and filibuster? Presidential commission-appointing? Feeble financial authorizations?

It's getting a little scary.

THE DOCTOR SAYS

Brown Lung Disease—Textile Worker's Ailment

By WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.

A disease occurring among textile workers—carders and spinners of cotton, flax and hemp—is receiving attention, long overdue, from both the U.S. Department of Labor and Department of Health, Education and Welfare. It is brown lung disease or byssinosis, similar in many ways to the black lung disease of coal miners. It is caused by the inhalation of lint and it is estimated that it affects about 30 percent of the nation's 107,000 workers in this industry.

The disease is characterized by shortness of breath, cough and a feeling of tightness in the chest. The fact that it is worse on Mondays than during the week suggested that a release of histamine from the lint in the lungs occurred on reexposure. To test this assumption, one group of workers was given an antihistamine on returning to work on Monday and a similar group was given an identical-looking but inert tablet. During the day, the volume of air the workers who took the blanks were able to exhale decreased but the forced expiration volume of those protected by the antihistamine remained the same or improved.

The giving of an antihistamine, however, is not the answer to the problem. Legislation is now being considered to insure better ventilation in our textile mills.

Q—How low can a sperm count be and still fertilize an ovum? What are my chances of becoming pregnant if my husband's sperm count is low and my periods are irregular?

A—An analysis of the seminal fluid takes into account the number of sperm, their shape and their motility. Although there are no well-defined limits of normal for any of these characteristics, when the count is less than 20 million per cubic centimeter (normal about 60 million) and the sperm are sluggish or abnormally shaped, pregnancy is unlikely to occur. The irregularity of your periods in itself is of no significance.

Q—After you have had a baby, can you get pregnant again six weeks later, even if you have not menstruated yet?

Q—Because of the danger of infecting the uterus, six weeks is the irreducible minimal period after delivery before intercourse should be resumed. After that, pregnancy is possible. But, if menstruation has not occurred or if you are nursing your baby, the chances of becoming pregnant are remote.

Reds Find Life Behind the Wire Far From Grim

By TOM TIEDE
NEA Staff Correspondent

PLEIKU, South Vietnam—(NEA)—Military authorities believe that approximately 30,000 Allied soldiers are presently being held by the Communists as prisoners of war.

The exact figure is unknown—the Reds won't tell. Some 30,400 Allied troops, including 1,430 Americans, are listed as missing in action. But precisely who are dead, who are alive and who are prisoners is known only to the enemy.

What is known, however, is that those who are prisoners are not having a good time of it. Their diet is meager, their medical treatment crude, their captors often cruel—and their living conditions largely a mess.

The Allied command in the war has done everything possible to pressure or shame the Communists into handing captives with decency. Perhaps the most important thing the Allies have done along this line is to set up exemplary prisoner camps of their own.

Like the one here in Pleiku.

The local camp is one of six in the country. It covers several dozen acres of a cool hilltop. It houses 1,100 of the more than 30,000 enemy captives now in South Vietnam.

And the place is not only adequate.

It's almost pleasant.

The camp commander is 59-year-old, U.S.-trained, Maj. Nguyen Van Phan. He's a military cop. He doesn't necessarily like his prisoners, but he does everything but somersault to treat them according to humanitarian dictates.

Incoming prisoners are checked over medically and psychologically. They are photographed and fingerprinted. Copies of the pertinent information is quickly given to the International Red Cross so that prisoners' families can be notified.

The prisoners are then issued two sets of sturdy clothing, one pair of sandals, soap, toothbrush, paste, comb, etc.

And then placed in camp routine.

The routine begins at 7 a.m. It ends at 8 p.m. In between, the prisoners are obliged to squeeze in some work, some play, two meals—and as much comradeship as camp security allows.

The work takes many forms. Everything from grass cutting to vegetable growing. There is plenty of grass. And there are plenty of vegetables. The camp has flower and greenery beds all over the crusty landscape. And the half-acre of vegetables includes such items as cabbage, onions and tomatoes. There are two pigs for occasional camp feasts.

The play is divided into two areas. There are a couple of large recreation rooms (Ping-Pong, magazines, dominoes, checkers). And there is an enormous outdoor field (soccer, volleyball, exercise). The daily schedule permits two relaxation periods—between noon and 2 p.m., and after dinner until lights out.

As for the food, it is plentiful and well-prepared. Rice and fish mostly—the Vietnamese staples. It's cooked in clean crockery and served in a suitable mess hall. The men get 700 grams of food a day, about 38 cents' worth, or exactly the ration allowed to enlisted members of the regular Vietnam army.

To be sure, all is not roses for the enemy POWs. There is a loneliness and natural fear in everyone's eyes. There is a sense of defeat, a hint of humiliation—and, most probably, a never-ending longing to escape.

There are, occasionally, brutal guards. Some Vietnamese captors feel the prisoners are pampered. Others just like to bully underdogs. As a result, some nasty incidents have been reported from the compound.

Yet, on balance, life for prisoners here is almost exactly according to the rule book. The camp is immaculate—cleaner than any regular military post in the country. The men are allowed to send and receive letters. Those with families in the south are allowed once-a-month visits. And there is even a token salary for all (eight cents a day) so that inmates can purchase such comfort items as tobacco, sugar and candy.

It's not home, maybe. But it's not hell either.

As camp commander Phan says:

"All in all, we believe we treat the Communist prisoners with the dignity all soldiers deserve. My only wish now is that the Communists would treat our prisoners in the same way."

Insurance Is Simply a Betting Game

By DALA MCKINSEY
Associated Press Writer
LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Insurance is a betting game. In essence, the large companies are betting policyholders they will not have an automobile accident at least until the companies show a sizeable return on their investment.

The odds on this, however, have shrunk for the companies and policyholders find they are paying higher and higher premiums.

These developments, though, may lead to a mandatory deductible clause on all vehicle insurance with hopes of stabilizing the cost of automobile insurance. Most persons now carry only collision deductible.

Richard Herget, manager of the Arkansas Association of Insurance Agents, said that the whole business of insurance is the "theory of large numbers." Simply, this theory is that the insurance companies quote rates with the idea they will make a profit on the volume of investments.

"Right now the numbers are beating the insurance companies," Herget said. "The loss will be reflected in the betting odds because of the fantastic rise in repairs and medical bills."

State Insurance Commissioner Allan Horne said recent action taken by the Aetna Insurance Co. in New Jersey was alarming. He said the company withdrew all automobile coverage in the state, leaving about 88,000 cars uninsured. He said he doubted if the other companies in New Jersey could absorb all of Aetna's policyholders, leaving many without insurance.

Horne said he did not anticipate such action in Arkansas and said he had been making "tours" of the state in an effort to determine what the problems in the industry were. He explained that the tours were a "preventive measure" in an attempt to avoid any action such as that taken by Aetna in New Jersey.

Horne said his department was considering the possibility of ruling that a $50 or $100 deductible clause was mandatory on all automobile insurance. He said that the deductible clause would cut down on the number of fraudulent claims and would, perhaps, act as a stabilizing factor in rates.

He said that if the policyholder had to share in the loss, he would be more careful. He said too, that the small claims, which cost as much to process as large claims, would be eliminated.

For example, Horne said, a man with a burned out headlight would not be able to file a claim as is frequently done. He said this would help the number of fraudulent claims that are normally small.

Horne said, and Herget concurred, that the rates in Arkansas will continue to rise as long as there is inflation.

"You can't pay a 1969 lawsuit

MRS. LURENE PAGE

Mrs. Lurene Page, VISTA volunteer with headquarters in Texarkana, spoke to the Phi Beta Lambda Business club at Red River Vocational Technical School, on Monday, January 12. She was introduced by Mrs. Martha Baker, counselor for Operation Mainstream in Texarkana.

Mrs. Page gave a very informative account of her work with the poor and underprivileged of America and other nations as well. Mrs. Page also expressed her faith and confidence in the youth of America.

In 1968 prices," said Horne after he noted that inflation nationally rose five per cent last year.

Herget said Arkansas faces a problem that every agricultural southern state faces.

He cited the conditions of the highways as a contributing factor in insurance rate increases.

In Arkansas, roughly 32 per cent of the roads are paved. The remainder of the roads are gravel and in some cases are mere dirt tracks cut out of the woods.

Several insurance agents report that in the areas that have gravel roads there are a great number of claims filed for broken windshields due to flying gravel.

Horne said one problem involved in windshield repair is that owners are told by service stations and car dealers to change the glass when there is a small pebble mark or "star" in the corner. He said these people then file for the claim, not realizing that the claims are eventually reflected in their insurance premiums.

Several insurance agents said that the number of accidents, the rising cost of hospitalization and repairs are reflected in the soaring insurance rates in the state and across the nation.

Horne said he sees no halt to the rising rates.

He did say, however, that Arkansas ranks 35th nationally in the amount of premiums paid—with the average quoted at $55.61 a year. Massachusetts has the highest rates nationwide with an average of $129.92. South Dakota is 50th at $33.01.

Arkansas recently had a rate increase and one policyholder reports that his insurance was $64 for six months a year ago. Six months ago it was $83 and today he is paying $101. This is full coverage on a sedan with a secondary student driver under 25 who has had driver's education and maintains good grades.

But more Arkansas agents are coming around to the idea that mandatory deductible insurance might be a means to stabilize the rates.

A Little Rock insurance agent says he agrees with Horne that deductible insurance would cut down on fraudulent claims and the companies' processing cost.

He said the cost paid by the policyholder merely reflects the cost of processing claims, inflationary trends, the amount of claims and not necessarily that the company is really making a sizeable profit.

Horne said that under the law a company is allowed to make five per cent profit. To get a rate increase in Arkansas the company must appear before an Insurance Commission hearing and prove that it is not getting that margin of profit. Only then are the rates upped.

Herget said there is a social aspect to the rising cost of insurance that is not always considered. He said that there will be a loss of market if the current trend continues. He pointed out that insurance is necessary in financing such items as a car or home. Without insurance, the buyer just can't borrow the money.

To curb the rise, Herget speculated that more law enforcement on the highways and better roads would add conditions — that a $50 deductible clause

1,600 Aboard Ship Still in Quarantine

VANCOUVER, B.C. (AP) —

About 1,600 persons in voluntary quarantine aboard a luxury ocean liner face at least two more days in port while health authorities seek the source of typhoid fever which struck six crewmen.

Three hundred others who had been scheduled to leave from Vancouver on the SS Oronsay have not been allowed aboard. P&O Lines is providing quarters for them on Oronsay's sister ship SS Orliana.

Doctors reported that tests showed food and drink aboard the Oronsay to be free of typhoid, a highly contagious disease usually transmitted through food or water.

Four crewmen were hospitalized in San Francisco and two others in Los Angeles, all with confirmed cases of typhoid. Seventeen other crewmen and one passenger were hospitalized here Wednesday, but none was confirmed as having the disease.

Capt. John Wachter said about 1,000 passengers and about 600 crewmen remained aboard today. He said 700 passengers and 600 crewmen had been inoculated since the disease first was suspected last Friday at Los Angeles. Others aboard had been inoculated within the past year and did not need new inoculations, he said.

The captain said there had been no alarm among the passengers.

The Oronsay's voyagers agreed to remain aboard at the ship company's request. Health authorities here explained quarantine is not required for typhoid under international sanitary regulations.

Typhoid can be passed by a carrier, a person who has had the disease whether he knows it or not.

Dr. G. A. Mott, Vancouver deputy health officer, said his department was testing crew members, seeking a carrier who is "probably a food handler."

The Oronsay sailed from London Dec. 16 on a four-month world cruise and stopped at Caribbean points before traveling through the Panama Canal and thence to the two California ports and Vancouver. It was to have left here Wednesday after a stopover of less than 24 hours.

Also approved was a $51,300 grant for the same purpose for Bryant in Saline County, a preliminary loan of $9,600 to plan the construction of 24 low-rent housing units at Yellville and a $6,400 loan to the Lonoke County Housing Authority to plan construction of 16 low-rent units.

How to Deal With Dividends

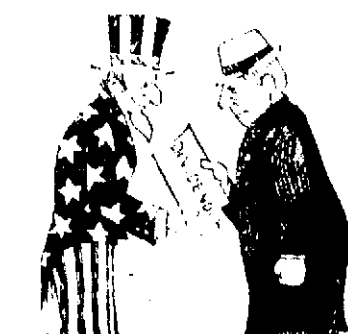

By RAY DE CRANE
Distributed by Enterprise Press

Any interest earned on savings deposits or bonds is taxable on your annual income tax return. The interest on Series E bonds may be reported annually as it accrues or reported in a lump sum at the time of redemption.

But the tax law writers have given a special tax break to those who are willing to risk their capital in common stocks or in mutual fund holdings. The first $100 in dividends received from U.S. corporations is totally excluded from tax. Should a husband and wife be filing a joint return and if each has $100 or more in dividends from stock held individually or jointly owned, their dividend exclusion is $200.

In community property states, dividend income is community income, one-half of which is owned by each spouse. On joint returns they receive up to a $200 dividend exclusion and on separate returns each receives up to a $100 exclusion regardless of whose name is listed as the owner of the securities.

No portion of one spouse's unused $100 dividend exclusion may be claimed by the other. If the wife, for example, receives only $80 in dividends as a result of stock owned either individually or jointly, she will receive only a $40 exclusion. The husband is restricted to his own $100 exclusion and may pick up his part of the unused $200 portion of the wife's

The remedy for this situation is to put an equal number of shares in each spouse's name or in jointly-held securities so that the full $200 exclusion may be claimed on a joint return.

Dividend information is received from corporations on a Form 1099. While this form should not be attached to your tax return it contains all the pertinent information you need in completing the dividend section.

shares frequently will be advised on their Form 1099 that they have received both ordinary dividends and capital gains dividends.

The capital gains dividends are subtracted from the gross dividends reported and are then entered on the appropriate line of Schedule D (capital gains and losses schedule). In this way only one-half of the capital gains dividends is taxable.

Under the next tax forms in use this year for the first time a special accounting on Schedule B is required only if the total of interest received and the gross dividends before the exclusion exceeds $100 in either category. If the entries are for less than $100 the amount is entered only on Form 1040 and the use of Schedule B is not required.

Only Medical Students Can Be Deferred

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Only medical students will be eligible for college deferments under the Nixon administration proposals to eliminate draft inequalities.

After a specified date, no other student entering college can claim a draft deferment on the basis of education.

However, a sophomore, junior, or senior with an existing draft deferment when the new rules go into effect will be permitted to complete his undergraduate schooling.

This is the thinking of Pentagon officials who have been shaping the Administration's proposals to do away with draft deferments in the student, occupational, and parental categories.

Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird said last weekend President Nixon "wants to move in the direction so that all young people are treated equally and fairly."

Proposed measures to carry out this objective will be reviewed by the National Security Council and laid before the Senate Armed Services Committee next month with indications the administration will put them into effect as soon as possible.

Just when this will be is still uncertain.

Officials said young men having occupational and parental deferments at the time the more stringent rules take hold will be allowed to retain them.

But, as in the case of student deferments, no new ones will be granted.

Unlike the student deferment, which officials say will permit exceptions for pre-medical students, there appears to be no prospect of any further deferments for job or family reasons, except where hardship might be involved.

Job deferments have been heavy in the field of teaching, police, and fire department work.

Authorities expect community needs can be filled adequately by former servicemen and no special deferments will be required in these areas.

The same reasoning applies to hard skill jobs in the mechanical and technical fields, it was said.

As the United States scales down its commitment in Vietnam and simultaneously reduces the overall size of the armed force, fewer and fewer young men will be required for the draft. The Pentagon expects the draft will take about 225,000 young men this year, a drop of 65,000 from 1969. The level should go down even further in 1971.

Reports Good News for Conservationists Who Fear Atom Blasts

By BILL STOCKTON
AP Science Writer

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — A nuclear scientist reports good news for conservationists who fear that using nuclear explosives to build dams, canals and harbors will pollute the earth with radiation.

Dr. B. Clark Grosch of the University of California's Lawrence Radiation Laboratory at Livermore, Calif., said Wednesday final tests at an underground site that is virtually free of harmful radiation.

Development of the explosive, he said, is the result of years of research to find the right combination of nuclear reactions, fuels and shielding.

Even cleaner nuclear devices can be built, he said, but their size or cost might be prohibitive for industrial purposes.

If the tests later this year are successful, he said, a nuclear

Group Recommends the Government Get Out of Oil Import Business

By JEAN HELLER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A cabinet-level task force will recommend to President Nixon that the federal government get out of the business of assigning valuable foreign oil import licenses because the system too easily lends itself to favoritism and corruption.

The task force will recommend that in place of the 11-year-old system of assigning import quotas to specific companies, tariffs be placed on foreign oil and the import market be opened to any company with the price of the tariff.

The report by President Nixon's task force on oil import controls has not yet been presented to the White House, although delivery is expected later this month, several weeks behind schedule.

The Associated Press obtained copies of sections of the report which deal with specific criticism of and suggestions for change in the present import system.

While the task force did not cite any specific instances where federal allocations of import licenses were dictated by favoritism or corruption, it did say the danger was inherent in the way the current program is structured.

A tariff system, the report adds, would be the answer.

One of the principal aims of the tariff proposal is to force down the price of oil produced in the United States, and hopefully decrease the price of consumer petroleum products.

Really, it would work like this: Domestic oil now costs about $3.25 a barrel to produce, or about $1.25 more than a barrel of foreign oil. The tariff would increase the cost of importing the foreign oil. That, in turn, could lead to greater domestic production and the lowering of the price of domestic oil.

The task force listed several advantages in the tariff system over the present quota system, including:

— The tariffs, which would allow American companies to import foreign oil on a first-come, first-served basis, would liberalize competition by eliminating a system where only a few companies are privileged.

— The tariffs collected under the program would go to the federal government and could be used to help develop new strategic petroleum reserves without an increase in taxes, could help finance development of synthetic petroleum and help develop reserves on government lands, all of which would add to the oil security of the United States.

Rice Farmers Against U.S. Cutback

STUTTGART, Ark. (AP) —

More than 1,200 rice farmers from three states adopted a resolution here Wednesday asking the U. S. Agriculture Department to amend its announced 15 per cent cut in the rice acreage allotment.

The farmers want two million acres this crop year, which would be 163,539 more than the 1970 allotment.

The farmers also adopted a resolution asking that farm parity for rice farmers be made 75 per cent, rather than the current 65 per cent.

Reps. Wilbur D. Mills, David Pryor and Bill Alexander, Democrats of Arkansas, and Rep. John Paul Hammerschmidt, a Republican from Arkansas, pledged their support to seeking solutions for problems of farmers.

"I've got high hopes that adjustments can be made," Mills said. "We can't go all the way back (to the 1969 acreage) because the figures just won't let us."

He said, though, that he had received word in a letter that the department is "certainly

Inmates at Prison Are Complaining

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Attorneys representing 24 inmates at Cummins and Tucker Prison Farms have filed a revised complaint in U.S. District Court challenging the constitutionality of the trusty guard system at the Arkansas Penitentiary.

The complaint filed Wednesday also challenged the forced labor of inmates without compensation and makes many other objections about the penitentiary.

Jack Holt Jr., and Phillip E. Kaplan, Little Rock lawyers, filed the seven-page complaint on behalf of the inmates who had complained about prison conditions in handwritten petitions.

The attorneys were appointed by Judge J. Smith Hendley to represent the inmates at a hearing on the penitentiary system scheduled for Jan. 26.

The judge said he wanted to consider not only the grievances raised by the inmates but the trusty guard system and the use of prisoners to perform labor without pay.

The revised complaint is a class action on behalf of all penitentiary inmates. The defendants are the state Board of Corrections and Robert Server, commissioner of correction.

The complaint alleges that inmates are being deprived of rights guaranteed by the Fourteenth Amendment to the United States Constitution.

Nigeria Says No to White Governments Who Helped Biafra

By MORT ROSENBLUM
Associated Press Writer

LAGOS (AP) — The Nigerian government has said no to aid from four white governments and all private agencies that helped Biafra. But it said it is consulting "a number of friendly governments for immediate requests for relief."

The ban affects the governments of France, Portugal, Rhodesia, and South Africa as well as such groups as Caritas, the Roman Catholic relief agency; Joint Church Aid, grouping a number of agencies; Canadian relief of Canada and the French and Nordic Red Cross.

The government said nothing about the four black African governments that recognized Biafra as an independent state: Zambia, Tanzania, Gabon and the Ivory Coast.

The government also put the persona non grata tag on "all foreign relief workers who operated illegally in the secessionist enclave" and said they would not be permitted in Nigeria. Presumably this means expulsion for those still in what was Biafra.

Lord Hunt, who headed the British team that conquered Mt. Everest, arrived in Lagos today with a committee to work out plans for British relief. His government has allocated $12 million for aid and 10 tons of relief supplies are waiting in London for airlift to Nigeria. The Nigerians first refused to allow them to be brought in on military planes, then submitted a request for extra medical supplies to be included in a civilian airlift.

The U.S. State Department announced that Maj. Gen. Yakubu Gowon, the Nigerian chief of state, told a U.S. envoy that the Nigerian government will not hesitate to call on the United States for assistance. The department said the Nigerian leader expressed warm appreciation to the U.S. diplomat, Assistant Secretary of State David Newsom, for the aid offered by the United States.

"There is no problem of delay or refusal to accept relief," said one official in Washington. "It is just a question of working out practical details."

The official said enough food is on hand in what was Biafra to feed the population for more than a month. The problem now, he said, is to find out how many people need relief and how to reach them.

He added that transportation and medicine rather than food are most needed at this point.

A Red Cross official in Lagos said that trucks and ships—not planes—are needed to get relief supplies to the refugees. P. C. Stanislav, liaison delegate of the League of Red Cross Societies, called Geneva that 60 trucks, 40 Land Rovers and maritime transport including a small ship of 500-700 tons are urgently needed.

Within an hour the crowd dropped off to about 100 persons who periodically chanted and marched back and forth.

Leaders of the protest said they would maintain a vigil outside the hotel throughout Agnew's stay.

Agnew Gets Protests in Auckland

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF
Associated Press Writer

AUCKLAND, New Zealand (AP) — More than 200 police formed a chain and pushed back about 500 chanting demonstrators today as Vice President Spiro T. Agnew ran into the largest anti-American protest of his 11-nation Asian tour.

Eight persons were arrested and dragged kicking and screaming from the predominantly youthful crowd that demonstrated outside Agnew's hotel, chanting "Go Home Yank" and waving Viet Cong and swastika-painted American flags.

The vice president's motorcade entered through the hotel's exit driveway at the other end of the block, and most of the demonstrators did not know he had arrived until he was safely inside.

Within an hour the crowd dropped off to about 100 persons who periodically chanted and marched back and forth.

Leaders of the protest said they would maintain a vigil outside the hotel throughout Agnew's stay.

School Folks Dismayed at Court Order

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

School officials have reacted with dismay to a U. S. Supreme Court ruling which ordered the desegregation of public schools in 14 districts of five Southern states by Feb. 1.

"Physically speaking, I think it is an almost impossible task," said Supt. M. Key Williams of East Feliciana Parish, La., one of the districts involved.

The decision, handed down by the court Wednesday on a 6-3 vote, reversed a ruling last Dec. 1 by the 5th U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans, which gave the districts until Sept. 1 to desegregate.

"I don't know how we are going to do it in less than three weeks," Williams said.

Beauregard County, Ala., School Supt. William F. Clark said he had "no earthly idea how the school system can completely mix by Feb. 1."

In Marshall County, Miss., Supt. Stanley Malliken Sr. said his district could make the changes in time, "but it's going to tear up almost all phases of our school program." He said he thought the public school system "will be all black, except in one area of the county."

A crowd estimated by police at more than 1,000 marched on the home of U. S. Dist. Judge W. A. Bootle in Macon, Ga., Wednesday night, carrying a petition asking for the preservation of neighborhood schools and freedom of choice integration plans.

Two representatives of the group were admitted to the judge's home. Bootle told them he will read and consider the petition along with four other Big County school plans that have been filed in his court.

Four hundred Bibb County teachers have been ordered to transfer by Feb. 26, but officials say these teachers will have to be given new transfer orders because the Supreme Court decision will mean more extensive desegregation.

The districts involved in Wednesday's ruling are Marshall County and the Jackson and Holly Springs municipal districts in Mississippi; Jefferson, Bessemer and Mobile counties, Ala.; Burke, Bibb and Houston counties, Ga.; Bay and Alachua counties, Fla., and West Feliciana, East Feliciana and Concordia parishes, La.

About 300,000 students are affected.

A source at the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals said the Feb. 1 date also will apply to 17 more districts which had previously been told they would be subject to whatever order the Supreme Court issued in the 14-district case.

Kelly Bryant Tossing Party for Himself

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Kelly Bryant, secretary of state, apparently is throwing an appreciation dinner for himself at $20 per ticket.

Asked Wednesday where proceeds from the dinner would go, Bryant answered, "In my pocket."

There was speculation that he might use the money to run for governor this year. Bryant is a Democrat.

He declined to answer some questions about the dinner, which is set for next Tuesday night in Little Rock's Hotel Marion.

The dinner is announced in a four-page brochure, which says the dinner is sponsored by the New Decade Banquet Committee, which lists a Little Rock Post Office box as its address.

The brochure, with Bryant's picture on the front, lists honors he has received and legislation he has helped to enact.

Some employees of his office reportedly are selling tickets to the banquet, and one employee said some of Bryant's aides help had been asked to buy tickets.

The employee said Bryant expressed the feeling that while employees did not have to buy tickets, he would appreciate it if they did.

PEA PICK'N GOOD FOR BUSY DAYS

After school, fall and it's back to school, back to the social time and back to the right-after-dinner meetings. If it seems that every organization from the P.T.A. to the bowling league requires your presence immediately after you've fed the family, the daily routine can really suffer; not to mention the family's meals.

Getting a hearty, substantial meal on the table is a must on these cool autumn evenings; however, this task may seem like an impossible when you have to be out of the house by 5:30 p.m. But with canned gravies, the job is reduced to mere child's play.

Canned beef gravy, for instance, is made from natural juices and bits of beef. Smooth and brown, with robust beef flavor, it's great for warming up leftovers or as a no fuss, no lump gravy for your steaks.

Use it as a sauce to whip up the quickest stews and casseroles ever.

Here, canned beef gravy stars in a tasty Shepherd's Pie. It adds the perfect seasoning touch to garden vegetables and beef topped with a crown of mashed potatoes. A hearty fall meal ready in 30 minutes.

Glasses of chilled "V-9" juice, packaged dinner rolls, and canned rice pudding complete a nutritious, fast meal.

For more timesaving ideas, don't forget the other canned gravies, mushroom, giblet, and chicken. They're just as versatile.

SHEPHERD'S PIE

1 1/2 cups cubed cooked beef
1 package (10 ounces) frozen peas and carrots, cooked and drained
4 servings instant mashed potatoes

1 cup chopped onion
Dash leaf thyme
1 tablespoon butter or margarine
1 can (10 1/2 ounces) beef gravy

In saucepan, cook onion with thyme in butter until tender. Combine with gravy, beef, and peas and carrots in 1 1/2-quart casserole. Prepare potatoes as directed on package; spoon around edge of casserole. Bake at 450° F. for 20 minutes or until hot. Makes 4 servings.

Heart Damage Links Autos, Cigarettes

By BRIAN SULLIVAN
AP Science Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Swedish scientists said today that carbon monoxide from cigarette smoke is "very likely" part of the reason smokers develop more coronary heart disease.
If this is so, they said, it means that scientists concerned about preventive medicine will have to take a look at all forms of exposure of people to carbon monoxide, such as automobile exhaust.
The carbon monoxide from cigarette smoke gets into the bloodstream, the scientists said, where it appears to pave the way for the accumulation of cholesterol in the arteries.
An excess of cholesterol is one factor that has been implicated in the incidence of heart disease. Deposits of the fatty substance clog the arteries, preventing normal flow of blood and oxygen.
The new report came from Drs. Paul Astrup, Knud Kjeldsen and John Wanstorp of the department of clinical chemistry at the Royal Hospital in Copenhagen. Dr. Astrup described work on rabbits and studies of humans at a conference on biological effects of carbon monoxide sponsored by the New York Academy of Sciences.
Dr. Astrup said his department noticed high concentrations of carbon monoxide in the blood of young men with coronary artery diseases.
Carbon monoxide, a poisonous gas released by combustion, combines with hemoglobin in the blood, displacing vital oxygen.
About 10 per cent of the smokers they studied, Dr. Astrup said, had unusually high levels of a compound formed by the carbon monoxide and hemoglobin-a compound called carboxyhemoglobin. The levels reached 10 to 20 per cent.
The high levels were linked to individual smoking habits, such as depth and duration of inhalation.
To check their observations, Dr. Astrup said that in one series of experiments, two groups of rabbits were fed cholesterol, but only one group was also exposed to carbon monoxide.
The accumulation of cholesterol in the arterial walls of rabbits exposed to carbon monoxide was three to five times as much as in those given only cholesterol, Dr. Astrup said. In tests on rabbits who were not given any cholesterol, the carbon monoxide produced damage in the walls of the arteries.
Dr. Astrup said the evidence indicates that the carbon monoxide makes the walls of the blood vessels more permeable, thus allowing an increased flow of fats through the walls. He said he is working with drugs that might counter this effect.
As large molecules of these fats pass through the walls to the lymph system, and back to the blood, some end up deposited in the blood vessels. If the walls are more permeable because of the carbon monoxide, the greater flow means a greater chance of fats depositing in the blood vessels.
Dr. Astrup also said that if it is correct that only 10 per cent of smokers have high carbon monoxide levels in their blood, "smokers having low carboxyhemoglobin levels should be perfectly safe in terms of atherosclerosis." But not in terms of other diseases, such as cancer, he said.

OLD SALT believes in keeping up with the times, especially when it means making his job easier. The traditional wooden lobster pots of New England may be on their way out, replaced by a wire type which weighs only 13 pounds as compared to 50 pounds for a waterlogged wooden version. The new pots are made of rustproof Armo aluminumized wire fabric.

Pill Accused of Causing Breast Cancer

By H. L. SCHWARTZ III
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A birth control researcher told Senate investigators today there is strong reason to believe the Pill can cause cancer.
"Breast cancers have been induced in at least five different species of animals by treatment with the same synthetic hormones being marketed in the oral contraceptives," said Dr. Hugh Davis of the Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine.
Davis told the monopoly subcommittee of the Senate Small Business Committee in prepared testimony that every agent which has been shown to cause cancer in humans also has been shown to cause it in animals.
"There is no reason to presume," he said, "that the single exception... will turn out to be oral contraceptives."
There is even less reason for such a presumption, Davis added, since the same compounds have been shown to produce breast cancer in males.
"Calling this a 'very rare finding' under other circumstances," Davis asked the subcommittee, "shall we have millions of women on the pill for 20 years and then discover it was all a great mistake?"
He said no woman should take the pill continuously for more than two years.
Davis was one of four researchers called to testify as the subcommittee, chaired by Democrat Caryl Chessman of Wisconsin, opened five days of hearings into the safety of the pill, now used by 8.5 million women in this country and an estimated 10 million abroad.
The hearings, two days this week and three next, are the first by Congress on the safety of the pill, which has been linked to everything—headaches to fatal blood clotting.
Most of the 18 witnesses scheduled have been critical of the pill for one reason or another.
Scheduled with Davis today were three researchers who cited possible genetic damage. One reported a study showing a form of synthetic female hormone used in one type of pill had caused cleft palate in mice.
Main purpose of the hearings, as outlined by Nelson, is to determine whether women are being adequately warned of the pill's known and suspected side effects.
Davis said little attempt has been made to either inform or protect women.
Davis also said intrauterine devices have been perfected so that they are now 99 per cent effective in preventing pregnancy in the 34 per cent of women who can use them.

FOOD FOR AMERICANS Food That Is Tasty Can Be Diet Trap

By GAYNOR MADDOX
NEA Food and Nutrition Columnist

Food is essential to life. If it tastes good, so much the better.
Many people have some idea of what they should eat to keep in top physical condition. But, basically, they will eat mainly those foods that taste good, look agreeable, are conducive to fellowship and a pleasant time. Whether the food is nutritionally valuable gets little, if any, serious consideration.
"Look at alcohol and tobacco. People enjoy them, even though they know they can be harmful. The same principle applies largely to their meals. Enjoyment is the major consideration," observes George M. Briggs, chairman of the Department of Nutritional Sciences, University of California (Berkeley).
"Does the principle apply to the way children eat? Yes, unfortunately," states Dr. Briggs, who headed up a group of scientists on nutrition teaching at the recent White House Conference on Food, Nutrition and Health in Washington, D.C. He believes the best way to teach children what to eat for health and growth is in the schools.
"The young mind is eager to learn. It wants to tear a thing apart to find out why it works. A good teacher can show youth exactly what a particular food consists of, explain the meaning of a nutrient in physical terms and explain its part in maintaining physical health. This basic concept of what food actually is will revamp hazy thinking about what they eat at home or what snacks they buy. But nutrition must be taught by qualified teachers."

"I've seen this work. Those youngsters who get interested begin checking on what they get at home. Often their interest and questioning inspires their mothers to ask about the nutritional value of the food they buy at the supermarket. However, supermarkets do not teach nutrition.
"Look at the variety of new snacks, the list of ersatz meat products, the many imitation 'milks' and the low-fat or no-fat ice creams offered. Packages and containers do not state the difference in nutritional values between the new products and those they replace.
"But on dog and cat food labels, the amount of protein, fat, etc., must be stated. Why shouldn't food manufacturers be forced by a similar law to state in bold print what food for human consumption contains in terms the buyer can understand?"
He believes in the enrichment of many more foods than bread. Only a few states enrich cornmeal and rice, for example.
"Certainly, for the health of the nation, there should be a national enrichment program. It would cost very little to both the producer and the consumer and it should enforce enrichment of every food back to its original nutritional value before refining processes stripped away several important elements valuable to health," he states.
At the White House Conference on Food, Nutrition and Health, this highly placed scientist pushed strongly for federal funds to support modern nutrition education teaching in our schools.
"I want a very high-level nutritionist appointed to supervise a national program. We have one for the new math and the new chemistry. Now we must have one for our nutritional education in elementary and high schools," Briggs stresses.

1-2-3 Steak

Here's a delicious, easy-to-prepare main dish to take care of dinner. Add it to your repertoire and you have this steak ready for cooking. Only a short time is needed for preparation. While the steak cooks, you'll have sufficient time to complete the rest of the meal. The 1-2-3 adds a new flavor to the delicately seasoned steak which complements the meat without masking the true meat flavor. The secret to serving is to cut the steak very thin, on the diagonal.
Sharpened to the tip of the appetite of family or guests and welcome.
1-2-3 Steak on Noodles
